POLICEMAN SHOTS WIFE, TWO GIRLS AND HIMSELF IN FUSILLADE ON STREET

Debbs, Auto Driver for Inspector Farrell, Runs Wild With Revolver.

HITS TWO ON CORNER.

Last Bullet for Himself as Wife Falls to Sidewalk Wounded.

Waving a revolver and shrieking out that he intended to kill every one in the world, Tony Debbs, a chauffeur for Police Inspector John J. Farrell of the Alexander avenue station, Bronx, shot and wounded two young women standing on the corner of Columbus avenue and West One Hundred and First street; turned the revolver on his wife, wounding her, and shooting himself with intent at suicide.

Debbs had returned with the inspector's auto to the Riverside Garage at West One Hundred and First street and Broadway to his home at No. 106 West One Hundred and First street.

There he quarrelled with his wife and pursued her to the street, emptying his revolver. The girls who were wounded were hit by stray bullets.

Word was carried to the Riverside Garage and a car was rushed to the scene of the shooting.

The wounded girls and the wife of the shooter were hurried to the J. Hood Wright Hospital.

CAST OUT MURPHY AND DIX, OR LOSE, BRYAN'S MESSAGE

"The Commoner" Says Tammany Chief's Favorite Cannot Beat Straus.

BOSS SAYS HE'LL STICK.

Governor Logical Candidate for Renomination, and—Well, He's Leader.

WILSON AND MARSHALL WILL CARRY EVERY STATE IN UNION, SAYS BRYAN.

RENO, Nev., Sept. 26.—William J. Bryan entered Nevada to-day for three speeches. He passed through Reno on his way to Virginia City, where he spoke at noon.

"I don't concede a single State to either Taft or Roosevelt," said Mr. Bryan here. "Wilson and Marshall will make a clear sweep and will carry every State in the Union."

Mr. Bryan will make his principal address here to-night.

(Special to The Evening World.)

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 26.—William J. Bryan, in a Commoner editorial to-day, urges the Democracy of New York to turn down Dix and Murphy. Bryan says:

"What will the Democrats of New York do in beginning a campaign for the votes of men who want Government placed upon the substantial basis of equal rights to all and special privileges to none?"

"Will they surrender the control over their party to Charles F. Murphy who, repudiated at Baltimore, must be repudiated by the New York Democracy, if that Democracy would keep step with the spirit of 1912?"

"The New York Democracy is making a gallant fight against Murphy and his repudiation of Murphy. New York Democrats are pleading with Democrats to defeat the renomination of John A. Dix. There are many honest and capable men whom the Democrats might nominate for Governor of New York. They will meet with the severest disappointment if they undertake to pit a John A. Dix against an Oscar Straus."

"Prospects for Democratic success in New York are bright, but they will grow brighter with the defeat of Dix and the repudiation of Murphy. New York Democrats will do well to remember that the Democratic party in the nation is not engaged in a sham battle. The fight for good government is a game fight, so far as the Democrats of the nation are concerned, and it remains to be seen whether the New York Democrats are willing to lend aid in this patriotic fight."

"Murphy and his party can have no part in a real battle for popular government."

MURPHY'S VOTE FOR DIX, HE SAYS, AND RECALLS HE IS STATE LEADER.

"I can't stop anybody from thinking," gravely said Charles F. Murphy at Tammany Hall to-day, just after he had come in from Good Ground, and an Evening World reporter asked him about the printed report that he was going to support Governor Dix as his candidate and nominate Senator O'Gorman for the Governorship at Syracuse.

"Are you going to nominate O'Gorman?" The question was put to the Tammany sachem in different form.

"I have only one vote," was the cryptic reply.

"Are you for O'Gorman now?" Mr. Murphy's interviewer asked.

"I'll tell you whom I'm for when I get to the convention," Mr. Murphy replied, sagely.

"Are you still of the belief that Dix is the logical candidate for the place?" the question was then put.

"Yes, I see no reason why he should not be renominated."

"But you are of an open mind on the subject?"

"Certainly, I am always of an open mind," Murphy replied with a mysterious smile.

Wife of 93-Year-Old War Hero, Who Says She'll Dispossess Him

MRS. D.E. SICKLES

WOMAN T. R. PICKED AS PRETTIEST EVER HEROINE AT A FIRE

Though of Course it Was a Bad Start for Mrs. Leonard Day to Pour Oil on Flames.

Residents in the Mohegan Park section of Yonkers agreed to-day that the fire which burned the drawing room right out of the residence of Leonard A. Day, Chief of the Fire Alarm Telegraph Bureau, last night, was one of the most interesting spectacles of the sort they had ever witnessed.

In the first place the fire brought once more into the limelight Mrs. Leonard Day, whose pictures were published broadcast all over the country in 1906 when she was Miss Selma Adelaide Allen, and Theodore Roosevelt, then President, had made victorious announcement that she was the prettiest girl upon whom his eyes had ever rested.

It was cool in Mohegan Park last night. Mrs. Day was cuddled up close to the fireplace. On a table beside her was a kerosene lamp. The fire flickered low, and Mrs. Day hurried to the cellar for more wood.

There was a pop and tinkle of splintered glass. The sound brought Mrs. Day hurriedly back to the sitting room. Something had gone wrong with the lamp, and now it was on the floor, and the floor was ablaze.

POURS KEROSENE ON FLAMES IN MISTAKE FOR WATER.

Mrs. Day rushed into the kitchen. There were two live-lion cubs in the cupboard. One she had filled with water in readiness for transfer to the radiator of her husband's automobile. The other contained kerosene.

Grabbing one of the cans, Mrs. Day ran back to the sitting room and poured and poured. Ziti went the first. She had poured the wrong can, and the flames, greatly encouraged by the unexpected present, licked out at the far walls of the room. Mrs. Day retreated, screaming to Main, the German maid.

"Don't waste a minute, Mata," she cried. "The house is aflame. Don't stop for anything but the cubs!"

And Mata, who as a health principle never wears a nightgown, followed instructions to the letter. Down the stairs she came, an unmounted Lady Godiva—down the stairs and out into

REBELS SURRENDER IN NICARAGUA TO U. S. COMMANDER

Gen. Mena With 700 Men Lays Down Arms to Admiral Southerland—Revolt Ends.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Gen. Mena, leader of the Nicaraguan revolutionists, is to be sent to Panama under guard of American sailors and marines. American Minister Wetzel reported to the State Department to-day that Rear Admiral Southerland had accepted the surrender of Mena and 700 followers at midnight, Sept. 24.

His capture is taken to indicate the collapse of the revolution, and his removal to Panama probably means exile. Officials here believe Gen. Mena requested that he be permitted to surrender to Admiral Southerland from fear of summary action at the hands of the Nicaraguan Federalists, and the Admiral doubtless thought it advisable to get the rebel leader out of the country as soon as possible.

Granada is now completely under control of United States forces.

the street. The baby had its diminutive "nighty" on.

A crowd gathered outside.

Mrs. Day ran out a moment later and glanced at the maid.

"Oh, Mata, how could you?" she whispered. Then she thought of her father's picture to her the article of most value in the burning room.

MRS. DAY RESCUES PICTURE BUT IS PAINFULLY BURNED.

She rescued the picture, but her clothing caught fire. Donald Catlin, a neighbor, extinguished the blaze. Mrs. Day's right arm was burned painfully.

"Mr. Day got there in the midst of the excitement, the motor car's horn tooting at his approach."

Mata stood out in the picture, throwing the burned sitting room and rescued baby into the background.

"Oh, Mata," he said. "How could you?"

Then Mata became aware for the first time what these rebels had meant. She squaled with indignation, alarm, surprise and rushed to shelter.

She wouldn't appear on the streets of once-more-placid Mohegan Park to-day

REPUBLICANS PLAN STATE CONTROL OF THE POLICE

Plank in Proposed Platform Denounces the Scandal in This City.

HINMAN LEADS FIELD.

Night Session Made Necessary

by Long Delay in Report of Resolutions Committee.

By Martin Green, (Staff Correspondent of The Evening World.)

CONVENTION HALL, SARATOGA, Sept. 26.—While Senator Brackett, as Permanent Chairman, was assuring the delegates to the State Convention to-day that the Republican victory this fall was certain, a sub-committee of the Resolutions Committee was in secret session trying to frame up a platform upon which the old time conservative Republicans can stand in harmony with those Republicans who lean toward the principles of the Bull Moose.

The managers of Republican thought have come to the conclusion that they must make a play to get back the voters who threaten to desert the party and vote for Oscar Straus.

The sub-committee of the Resolutions Committee finished its work early this afternoon and agreed to submit a tentative draft of the platform to the full committee.

The sub-committee's recommendations included planks treating on woman suffrage, direct primaries, short ballot, workingmen's compensation and State police. The suffrage plank calls for a referendum of the question to the voters of the State. The sub-committee declined to make public the draft until its submission to the full committee.

After the full committee began the consideration of the platform it was seen that it could not finish its work in time to report to the convention this afternoon. It was decided that the convention should meet again to-night to receive the report. The nominations will wait until to-morrow.

FOR STATE SUPERVISION OF POLICE.

The tentative platform submitted to the committee on resolutions provided for a system of State inspection of local police. This plank was the outgrowth of agitation following the New York City police scandals. It says:

"The disgraceful condition into which the Democratic administration has brought the exercise of the police powers in the great city, which contains nearly one-half of the inhabitants of the State, calls urgently for reform. All the people of the State are vitally interested in the preservation of order and the just administration of the law in the city of New York, to which the constantly resort for the transaction of their business. The honor and good name of the State are concerned in the safety of life and property and a decent regard for public morality in that chief center of national commerce and finance. It is the purpose of the Republican party in the State to better the chaotic condition of the police by providing for a system of State inspection of local police, so that the State government may, without superseding local administration, require faithful performance of duty and compel the correction of abuses."

So much case has been expressed in fixing up the platform that other matters of moment have temporarily dropped to the rear. And even after the platform has been submitted to the convention more delay may result, for many a plank submitted by delegates has been discarded.

CHEER NAME OF TAFT. HISS ROOSEVELT.

For the first time since the affair opened the delegates made a name like a real convention during the opening session to-day. That veteran politician, Edgar Truman Brackett, woke them up and they went so far as to actually cheer the name of President Taft for almost a minute and also to roundly hiss the name of Theodore Roosevelt.

Brackett, presiding at the time, Republican doctrine. He guessed his audience would rise to the assertion that all the good the country has experienced was due to the Republican party, and all

MRS. SICKLES TO PUT AGED GENERAL OUT OF HIS FIFTH AVE. HOME

She Tells Evening World She Will Foreclose Mortgage on House in Revenge for His Signed Statement Attacking Her.

TO SELL HIS WAR RELICS UNDER $8,000 JUDGMENT

"Let Us See If His Comrades Will Stand by Him Now!" Declares Wife After Reading Statement.

Major-Gen. Daniel E. Sickles, U. S. A., retired, ninety-three years old, is to be evicted from his home at No. 23 Fifth avenue, and is to be stripped of every possession he has in the world, if his wife, from whom he has been separated for thirty-two years, carries out her present plans. Mrs. Sickles, who is a Spaniard and has considerable capacity for wrath, issued a normal declaration of war, to-day, from her apartments in the Hotel Marlton on West Eighth street, just a block from the general's home.

The battle signal was raised within a few seconds after she read a public statement regarding herself and their affairs, which Sickles gave out to the newspapers earlier in the day. In this statement, the General sought to destroy any sympathy for his wife, based on her pawning jewelry, a week ago, to take up an $8,000 judgment against him; he attacked her personal character, said the jewels were his and not hers, anyway, and charged her with holding the arrested judgment over him as a club.

BABY'S ARMS GO OUT, SO JUDGE SAYS DADA CAN VISIT HIS BOY

Lawyer Also Wanted Chance to Take Youngster to See the "Movies."

Three-year-old Seymour Klein, from the lofty position of a table provided for lawyers, to-day was an interested auditor while his father, Emmanuel Klein, a Park Row lawyer, pleaded with Justice Pondleton of the Supreme Court for permission to take the youngster to "the movies" once in a while.

Seymour only sucked his finger and regarded the Judge and the court room crowd with awe and wonder, but it was plain to be seen, when the proposition of visits to "the movies" was mentioned that he was heartily in favor of it. His father argued the point with the astuteness of a trained lawyer and with the eloquence of a loving parent. Seymour argued it with his big, excited eyes.

When Mr. and Mrs. Klein appeared before the Justice for the purpose of having him rule on the momentous question of how often Mr. Klein should see his little boy, Seymour was playing underneath the counsel table, which made a fine bear's cave.

"Now, little man," said His Honor, addressing the tiny cooer, "do you love your papa?"

For answer the child, his small face shining, turned toward his father with his baby hands outstretched.

"This man shall have the privilege of seeing his son at least three times a week," said Justice Pondleton.

Mrs. Sickles, with her tall blond son, Stanton, by her side, listened to the reading of the General's statement with growing anger, which caused her to leave the room and return more violently.

When it was finished, Stanton Sickles said: "How awful!"

Mrs. Sickles stepped quietly in front of him.

"It is enough," she said. "He is old. He is poor. He is my husband—by the law. He has been a brave soldier for his country. So much is true. But now, badly advised by a malicious old woman, he has forfeited any consideration which he may have had from me, however little he deserved consideration. This is the end."

"I hold a $40,000 mortgage on that house. It is a second mortgage. He has never paid me one cent of interest. He has capitalized himself as a lawyer, to-day was an interested auditor while his father, Emmanuel Klein, a Park Row lawyer, pleaded with Justice Pondleton of the Supreme Court for permission to take the youngster to 'the movies' once in a while."

"I shall evict him. I hold the judgment of which he speaks in his letter. It is true. By having the mortgage transferred to me, I meant to let him live out his life among his possessions as he had always held them. Now I shall sell them for what they will bring, and despite his pathetic boasts of their value, they will not be found to be worth $8,000. Will any of the mythical comrades whom he quotes trust him with the money to live on in his foolish spendthrift fashion—as I was ready to do?"

"They may, but they will be sorry to save him. They were not mine, but his. Every single trinket was mine and had never been his or that of any member of his family except one—a jeweled heart. I redeemed that from a pawnshop at his request. It is true that I have the silverware of which he speaks. Some of it is here, some of it in Madrid. All of it is subject to litigation."

DECLARES SHE MAY SUE GENERAL FOR DIVORCE.

Gen. Sickles, in his chivalry, has seen fit to make a dreadful insinuation regarding my character. Stanton, here, is my only child. Seventeen years after the General left me in Madrid I came to this country with the son of a friend of mine, a widow to whom the child had been born a few months after her husband's death. The boy's name was Miguel. He lived with me here until he was able to support himself, and then went into the world to earn his own liv-
